LOCATION

The property is located in East Kilbride, one of the largest towns in Lanarkshire situated approximately 12 miles southeast of Glasgow city centre. In the 1940's East Kilbride was one of Scotland's villages chosen to become a new town, which were areas given a special development status. East Kilbride is one of the most successful new towns and today provides extensive housing, shopping and leisure facilities as well as being a large industrial base for both manufacturing and distribution companies. Road links in this area are good connecting the town to Scotland's motorway network. The A725 road connects the town with the M74 motorway leading south, which also provides access to the M73 leading north and the M8, which leads east to west through the central belt. The A726 has also been extended with the southern orbital route linking East Kilbride with the M77 at Junction 5, which is the main route south to Ayrshire from Glasgow.

The property is situated on the eastern edge of Nerston Industrial Estate, located on Whin Place which lies adjacent to part of the A725 that connects East Kilbride with Hamilton and the M74.

DESCRIPTION

The property comprises a single storey mid-terraced industrial building forming part of a complex of industrial units of similar sizes and accommodation.

The terrace has a small shared yard area to front which also provides access to a neighbouring terrace. This provides a level of non designated car parking for the development.

ACCOMMODATION

The accommodation comprises open plan workshop area with small offices formed to the front and two toilets to the rear.

FLOOR AREA

We calculate the gross internal floor area of the property at 188.87 sq m (2,033 sq ft).
